

The Story of the Klearflax Rug

On the great plains of the Northwest, 2,000,000 acres are broken for flax alone each spring. About the first of August, the flax plant bursts out into the bloom of its pale blue flowers.

Flax grows successfully on freshly turned prairie sod, and in regions where moderately cool, damp weather prevails during the summer, without sudden changes or unusual climatic conditions to prevent the growth of uniformly even flax. American flax has been found by actual test to compare favorably with that produced before the war in the famous Courtauld region of Belgium, which means that this flax is as good as that used in the best of Irish lace, for Courtauld ships most of its crop to Ireland.

Flax reaches its maturity about 80 days after the planting, and the harvesting is done on a scale no less inspiring than is the planting. The average yield is about two tons to the acre, and America's annual production is 4,000,000 tons.

The harvested flax is sorted with special care, baled and sent by the growers to the Klearflax Mills at Duluth. Here the bales are opened up and resorted; and only the A-1 quality is used. Flax alone is used in the manufacture of these Rugs.

The park commissioners and cemetery commissioners have begun work at Elmwood cemetery, cutting away the old hedge and taking away the old wall on the southeasterly side. This work is preparatory to the landscape grading which will be done there. A bill was introduced in the last legislature for the permission to go ahead with the work and it is expected great improvement will be made.

At the Barre opera house Friday evening of this week Martin S. Vilas of Burlington, a lawyer and state senator, will speak on the merits of the league of nations covenant. It had been expected that Vernon A. Bullard of Burlington would be Senator Vilas' opponent in a joint debate, but Mr. Bullard has found it impossible to be in Barre on that date. If no other contestant is found, Senator Vilas will talk alone.

A number of the Barre shriners attended the Shriner's convention held last week in Sherbrooke, P. Q. The headlines in Montreal papers give a little idea of the magnificence of the affair. More than five hundred visitors from two nations thronged Sherbrooke, while the parade and drill in picturesque costumes delighted many spectators. Entertainments, of the red fozed visitors of various sorts, made the affair a great success. Special trains and special automobiles brought hundreds of shriners from all parts of New England.

J. A. Field has begun excavations on a cellar, intending to build a house opposite Elmwood cemetery on Washington street. Mr. Field purchased the lot where the old Lewis Averill building stood. The plans are all laid for the building with a 24-foot front and running back 40 feet, with two stories. The house will have two sets of double piazzas, one facing Washington street and the other facing Hill street. Mr. Field intends to have the building in shape to live in by the first of January. The lumber and cement arrived to-day and with enough help, Mr. Field is confident he can put the building up in a few months. It will be built for two tenements.

Steven Whalen, a student in the Boston Conservatory of Music, who has been in Barre for the past few weeks in the interests of Messrs. Messier and Whalen, who have been engaged in arranging music to lyrics which Al Messier, the drummer and marimba player in Gilbertson's orchestra has composed, left last night for Boston and New York, where he intends to secure copyrights on their words. Messrs. Messier and Whalen have been working on seven songs, which they hope to make public in a few weeks. The first of their songs, entitled "That's Why I'm a Lonesome Dad," will be featured in about two weeks.

Three linemen of the New England Telephone company narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when the Ford truck of the company went over the bank near the Catholic church. L. M. Newton, driver of the truck went over the bank with the car, but was uninjured. Roy French and James O'Grady, both linemen, jumped before the car pitched down the bank. The men were starting up the seminary hill when something went wrong with the steering gear, and the road being quite rough on the right hand side, it caused the wheels to lock, and the front end of the car jumped onto the cement sidewalk and before the brakes could be put on the truck had headed over the bank towards the Catholic church, a little speed having been gained to "make" the hill. The steering gear of the car was completely demolished but there were few other damages to the automobile. Garage men were summoned and the machine was soon put in running order. It is about a 12-foot drop where the truck went over the bank.

His condition improved very slowly, and not until yesterday was he able to leave his bed, which was for a short time only. A badly bruised left leg is the cause of his detention.

Through the D. A. Perry Real Estate agency, the house at 30 Academy street owned by Mrs. Mary Wyllie of Burlington has practically sold to the property of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Oliver, for the final papers are expected to be passed to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver, having made the investment for a home, take possession immediately.

Theodore and Mary Thygesen, who have just arrived from Sterling, Colo., are the purchasers. The sale included the entire property with the stock and tools as held by Mr. Nielson, for Mr. and Mrs. Thygesen plan to take possession immediately as their new home.

An American Express company's rig figured yesterday in another slight accident, when F. R. Chase, expressman, was driving from Main street towards Washington street and one of the wheels came off the vehicle, tipping the car completely over and throwing Mr. Chase forward over the horse, he sustaining several body bruises but being able to keep his horse quiet and pick up the scattered parcels, which were thrown over the street. The put which held the wheel to the wagon was found several rods from the cart.

The moderate weather of the past few weeks has favored the workers on the new Peerless factory site so that wonderful advancement in the work has been made, and unless a sudden and radical change makes an appearance soon the work will continue with this same rapidity. The comparatively warm weather has been a great asset to the cement workers, for already the 30-inch cement foundation wall has been poured and is now in preparation for the reinforced cement wall that is to be erected on it. The work of excavating has been completed and for the past two days the workmen have been pouring cement or erecting forms for the 11-foot cement walls. Bricks for the factory are fast being transported from box cars to the site by automobile trucks and since the city council gave permission to erect the factory proper, and boilerhouse and dye-room after the building inspector had made a favorable report, it is expected that the construction work will be greatly accelerated so that its completion may come about in January.

The glittering black ink that formed the word "discharged" had scarcely dried on the paper when Mitchell Leel, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leel of 48 Brook street, had boarded a train due north from Hingham, Mass. He arrived home yesterday morning to pursue once again the routine of civilian life after being under the navy restrictions for the past 17 months. When Leel enlisted he was working for the Sullivan Machinery company in Claremont, N. H., but came to Burlington to enter the service, then being only 17 years of age. He passed the physical examination and was soon after shipped off with the submarine chaser Albatross, which for four months lay in ambush for the Hun submarines in American waters. He was then transferred to the U. S. cruiser Rochester, which, during the trans-Atlantic flight of Lieut. Reed and the other daring aviators, was the flagship for 100 destroyers that formed a chain across the Atlantic and in the course of the flyers. Before his ship returned to port it anchored in several foreign ports. For the past three months, Seaman Leel has been stationed at the Hingham naval receiving station.
